As reflected in the attached Schedule, GSN is seeking a ten-day extension for the replies to exceptions. If the motion is not granted, exceptions will be due December 23, 2016, with replies due January 3, 2017. This December 23, 2016 to January 3, 2017 time period coincides with pre-existing travel and other commitments, including those relating to the holidays. GSN is requesting the extension to accommodate these scheduling difficulties that would otherwise arise due to the holidays. A limited extension will ensure that the parties are able to provide the Commission with complete and comprehensive submissions in relation to a record that is “large . . . and addresses a number of complex factual and legal questions related to carriage of video programming.”³ The short extension requested in the motion would address those scheduling difficulties without creating a significant delay in the completion of the relevant pleading cycles.

This request is timely under Section 1.46 of the Commission’s Rules. GSN’s counsel has orally notified counsel for the other party and the Commission’s staff of this filing, and GSN is authorized to state that Cablevision and the Enforcement Bureau do not object to the grant of GSN’s request.

³ Game Show Network, LLC v. Cablevision Sys. Co., Order, MB Docket No. 12-122, File No. CSR-8259-P, DA 16-1393, at 2 (OGC rel. Dec. 15, 2016).

Respectfully submitted,
